

Extract from company holiday newsletter – required proofreading and conversion from US English to UK English.

Tinsel, with its mesmerizing reflections and movement, is always tempting to cats - and even some dogs. Since cats like to lick and chew at the plastic strings, ingesting tinsel is all too common and all too tragic. It can cause severe blockages in the intestines as well as other health issues, which can be fatal if not treated in time. Regardless of the severity, medical treatment will end up costing you much more than you had planned on spending during the holidays!

